

Arno J. Mundt, M.D. FACRO FASTRO

A native of Honolulu, Hawaii, Dr. Mundt graduated from Stanford University with a degree in Philosophy and went on to Medical School at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor. Following Medical School, he completed an Internship in Internal Medicine and a Residency in Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation at George Washington University in Washington DC. During his PM&R training, Dr. Mundt developed an interest in Oncology and decided to enter the field of Radiation Oncology.

Following a residency in Radiation Oncology in the Department of Radiation and Cellular Oncology at the University of Chicago, Dr. Mundt joined the faculty at that institution. In March 2006, Dr. Mundt was recruited to be Professor and the Founding Chair of the Department of Radiation Medicine and Applied Sciences at the University of California, San Diego (UCSD).

Dr. Mundt is an internationally recognized radiation oncologist. He has published over 100 journal articles, book chapters and reviews predominantly focusing on the use of novel radiotherapy approaches including intensity-modulated radiotherapy (IMRT), image-guided radiotherapy (IGRT) and stereotactic radiosurgery. He has edited 3 oncology textbooks, including two devoted to novel radiation technologies: IMRT: A Clinical Perspective and IGRT: A Clinical Perspective. The latter includes contributors from over 77 institutions in 18 countries. He has been an invited speaker at over 150 seminars, symposia and workshops in the United States and abroad, and has been a visiting professor at numerous prestigious Universities. A fellow of the American Society for Radiation Oncology (ASTRO) and the American College of Radiation Oncology (ACRO), Dr. Mundt has served as a senior editor of the International Journal of Radiation Oncology, Biology and Physics and as President of ACRO.